The War Today

By GUY RHOADES

"HIT-AND-RUN"

Britain continued her aerial attack on Germany today, reduced the Nazi aerial blitzkrieg to scattered "hit-and-run" raids and turned watchful eyes southeastward where Italy was reported to have massed troops for a possible assault on Greece from Albania.

German radio stations went off the air again last night, indicating the Royal Air Force was paying its usual nightly visit, and in the House of Commons at London Air Minister Sir Archibald Sinclair warned that as the nights grow longer with the approach of winter "we shall strike even deeper into the enemy's vitals."

VIOLENT

Greece remained on the alert as the Italian press and radio renewed violent attacks on her, and Virginio Gayda, authoritative Italian commentator who sometimes speaks or flies kites for his boss, Mussolini, accused the Greeks of conspiring with Britain in expansionist plans involving Albania.

Gayda's talk of the "Greece-Britain plan of offence" came on top of Italian radio claims Greeks had crossed the frontier and burned 10 Albanian villages. All these charges, obviously concocted with the aim of conditioning the Italian public to the idea of war against Greece or conditioning the Greeks to the idea of surrendering some of their territory were denied in Athens.

PROTECTED

A Greek government spokesman said Greece, protected on the Italian frontier by the "Metaxas Line" of fortifications, "will not be caught by surprise" if the Italians attempt an invasion.

All army leaves were canceled in the little kingdom and King George II received Premier John Metaxas in audience.

Italy, having taken Somaliland from a small British force, was believed looking anxiously for some new success that might not involve too much risk. The Italian people at home were represented in some quarters as standing up badly under the stress of a war they did not want in the first place.

HYSTERICAL

Travelers reaching New York from the northern manufacturing district of Italy which has had several visits from the R.A.F. report air raid alarms in the northern cities are terrible experiences due to the hysterical panicky dispositions of the population.

Diplomatic observers watched closely to see what attitude Turkey would adopt in the event of open hostilities between Greece and Italy. The opinion prevailed in Ankara that Turkey would help promptly, holding up her end of the agreement with Britain which guarantees Greek independence. Turkey has been a friend of Britain since almost the beginning of the late Kemal Ataturk's rule.

IMPORTANT

The Turkish position is of the utmost importance as she heads the Balkan entente which includes Greece, Yugoslavia and Rumania. The possibility was not overlooked that the threats against Greece might be warnings of an Italian move to start general action in the middle east; at Hitler's behest in an effort to spread Britain's attention. This might include the long-expected but unfulfilled Italian assault on Egypt.

Only yesterday in his war report Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons: "Far larger operations no doubt impend in the middle east theatre and it is certainly not attempt to discuss or prophesy about their probable course."

DEVASTATING

It was noticed also Mr. Churchill, in speaking of Britain's air power, said: "Even if the Nazi legions stood triumphant on the Black Sea, or indeed upon the Caspian, even if Hitler was at the gates of India, it would profit him nothing if at the same time the entire economic and scientific apparatus of German war power lay shattered and pulverized at home." He was referring to the devastating raids on Germany and German-held territory by the Royal Air Force.

Saviour of an Empire?

By MAJOR PAUL L. REED

If the British and Canadian aviators are devastating German industrial areas, the bomb sight above is largely responsible. Its job is to co-ordinate four variable factors: Altitude of the bombing plane, true air speed, wind direction, wind velocity.

The picture shows a bombing school student peering through the aperture on the vertical arm of the sight. Altitude of the plane is registered on this vertical arm. The student's right hand is resting on the wind direction scale knob, his left hand over the bomb release trigger.

Image of the target appears at the base of the sight. The forward horizontal scale is for the "set forward" allowance of the "time of flight." On this scale allowance is made for the time that must elapse as the bomb falls to the target from the plane.

True air speed is set on the circular scale on the lower right of the base of the sight. Wind direction is set on the large horizontal circular scale and allowance for deflection or drift is set on the semicircular scale on which the frame of the aperture rides. Wind velocity is calculated and included in this adjustment.

A complicated gadget... and the fate of an Empire may rest on its scales and tabs.

'Still a Britain'

"Yesterday there spoke, from the stuffy, Victorian-Gothic front bench of the House of Commons, one of the really great voices of the western world..."

The New York Herald-Tribune thus begins its leading editorial today, on the speech of Prime Minister Churchill.

The speech also is the subject of an editorial in the New York Times which says: "When confidence comes from such a man at such a moment as this, it becomes impressive and thrilling; and it was all the more impressive yesterday because of the array of solid facts... with which he supported his sure belief that Britain will survive."

The speech "rises above the babel of our times—not because Winston Churchill is in himself a greater man than some others," says the Herald-Tribune, "but because he is a strong man brought to a towering height by a great crisis of destiny."

INDOMITABLE

"He spoke to the point because he has no room for anything else. He spoke with a broad and bold statesmanship because he has no time to waste in little manoeuvres of shabby concealments or small-minded and illusory hopes. He spoke with a cold tenacity married to a blazing resolution—the indomitable leader of an indomitable people, who, each drawing strength and support from the other, know themselves to be standing in the breach of history."

"This was Mr. Churchill's report upon the nearly two months which have elapsed since the vast wreck and retreat on the blazing beach at Dunkerque. There were not many at that moment who could feel sure that two months later there would be a Britain; the Nazis were talking about taking London in two weeks; any number in this country were writing the British off in a panic, and talking about how to snatch the British fleet for our safety and defence out of the inevitable disaster. It was folly at the time; it is a double folly now. There is still a Britain, which not only 'feels stronger' but actually is 'stronger than we have ever been before.' A Britain largely rearmend and renewed by the driving energy and conviction at the head, a British capable of fighting and resolved on victory. A Britain determined even amid the crash of bombs and rattle of machine-gun fire in its streets, to be the master and not the passive victim of its fate.

HOLDING TOGETHER

"This is a Britain facing facts. It is a Britain which in a single, sweeping gesture offers us bases where we like in Newfoundland and the West Indies, not as a bargain, but because she sees the community of interest which, in this desperate world, overrides all petty conventions and minor jealousies. It is a Britain which, politely, but flatly, tells us that the food blockade will not be raised, because it is a Britain which knows exactly what she is doing and has the courage of the course to which she has set her hand. It is a Britain which needs, and frankly asks for, aid that we can send and have not been sending because we are wound up in empty legalisms and political delays and an inability to know our own minds or act promptly on our knowledge. And this is the Britain that, while she stands, still holds our old world together, but in falling—as fall she may—bringing it down in an irretrievable ruin."

"This world is neither a safe place nor a certain one. We do not know exactly what 50 of our destroyers in British hands could do; we do not know certainly whether Britain, with them or without them, can survive. But we do know that this Britain is a citadel of tremendous strength, there is a real and new hope that in Churchill's Britain the Nazi world revolution has at last met its match, and that if that citadel is supported world history may yet be shaped to tolerable, even to great and creative ends."

The Times says there was "not a breath of complacency in Mr. Churchill's recital" not a trace of the smug belief of former days that Germany could be cracked without terrific effort or sacrifice. He is not frightened because he knows and shares the superb fighting spirit which the British airmen and civilians alike have shown in the past few weeks of trial.

Final Bulletins

TROTSKY SEES END

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Leon Trotsky, at the point of death, from a pickax assault, was quoted tonight as murmuring to his secretary that "this time it is the end" and that he was sure his assailant "was a member of the OGPU (Soviet Secret Police) or a Fascist—most likely the OGPU."

So grave was his condition, brain specialists are coming here by chartered plane from the United States.

In a moment of consciousness during the night, he told those grouped anxiously about his bed: "I was seated when he struck me... I got up, I grabbed him. Then I ran to close the door."

Rumania Cedes Area

LONDON (CP)—Reuters news agency reported from Bucharest today Rumania has agreed definitely to cede southern Dobruja to Bulgaria, returning their frontier to that of 1912.

CABINET CHANGES?

LONDON (CP)—The Associated Press reported today a revival of rumors in political quarters of changes in the British cabinet after the fortnight's adjournment of Parliament, starting tomorrow.

Retirement of Neville Chamberlain, Lord President of Council, and replacement of Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax are mentioned.

GORGEOUS GOERING

BERLIN (AP)—Herman Wilhelm Goering has done the impossible—he's outstripped himself in his new Reichsmarshal uniform.

A new picture of the plump Herman shows him in a cloud-grey cape and tunic with gold trimmings, as opposed to the usual bluish air uniform.

His cap carries the gold flying eagle of the air force on the peak. The chin strap is gold. Around the entire band of the hat is a gold-stitched laurel wreath.

Show no Mercy

BERLIN (AP)—D.N.B., the German news and propaganda agency, said tonight Germany "is unable" to guarantee safe conduct for vessels carrying children out of war zones. D.N.B. was commenting on United States proposals to amend the neutrality law to permit American ships to carry British children westward.

Bonds Jump

NEW YORK (AP)—In one of the sharpest rallies since the start of the war decline, Canadian government and industrial bonds in stock exchange dealings today pushed up $20 to $30 per $1,000 bond. Securities circles attributed the rise to buying based on President Roosevelt's disclosure of an agreement with Canada for joint Canadian-American defence of the northern half of the western hemisphere.

'No Meeting Ground'

WARDHA, India (AP)—Maulana Abdul Kalam Azad, president of the All-Indian National Congress, said today he had informed the Viceroy of India, Lord Linlithgow, there was "no meeting ground" between the British government's promise of a new Indian constitution after the war.

British government spokesmen held out that offer August 8 as an inducement for full Indian aid in the war.

Greek-Italian Clash?

ROME (AP via Radio)—The Italian wireless said today it was "presumed in political quarters" the sharp tone of the Italian press toward Greece presages a "clash" between the two countries in the near future.

Duke, Dropped by King, Denies He's Pro-Hitler

LONDON (CP)—Informed London sources said today the Duke of Buccleuch, brother of the Duchess of Gloucester, was "perfectly free" and under no suspicion of fifth column activity. The Duke is in London "almost every week," the sources added.

An authoritative spokesman described as "fantastic" a report that King had removed the Duke of Buccleuch from his office as Lord Steward of the King's household because he was a fifth column suspect.

Nazis Try New Raid Tactics, Lose 7 Planes Over Britain

LONDON (CP)—The Air and Home Security Ministries announced today that "up to 5:30 p.m. (8:30 a.m. P.S.T.) a total of seven aircraft had been destroyed by our fighters."

The enemy losses included three Dornier 17s brought down by Spitfires about five miles inland on the northeast coast this afternoon. One Dornier fell in flames at a southeast village and its crew of three landed by parachute three miles away. Two fighters gave themselves up to farm workers. The third was captured by a farmer's wife and her 14-year-old son, who carried his father's Home Guard rifle.

NO BRITISH LOSS

There was no record of any British planes being lost today or yesterday.

Another German bomber was brought down by R.A.F. fighters over a southeast town. Two of the crew bailed out with parachutes.

Eyewitnesses saw one R.A.F. fighter do "a victory roll" as the squadron returned to its air-drome.

"SNEAK-IN" ATTACKS

Almost constant patrols of Spitfires and Hurricanes were kept in the air as reports indicated a change in German tactics from mass raids to scattered "sneak-in" attacks by individual bombers.

Late today a lone raider attacked a town in the southwest and dropped a bomb which destroyed a house, causing three casualties, including one fatality.

In a dogfight over the town the "Junkers-88" was brought down by an R.A.F. fighter. The bomber crew of five was killed.

Greatest damage was reported from the industrial Midlands, where several bombs hit a thickly-populated residential and shopping area, killing one woman and injuring several others.

It was difficult to get the individual German bombers before they had dropped their bombs, but masses of planes flying in close formation made "perfect" targets for both anti-aircraft guns and fighter planes.

Single dive bombers able to sneak in behind the clouds and come screaming down stood almost as good a chance of hitting military objectives, some observers pointed out, as large formations harried from the moment they crossed the coast.

TAKE INITIATIVE

The growing radius of British bombing attacks on Germany and German-occupied territory, coupled with diminishing Nazi aerial activity, was hailed in London as an indication the initiative has been taken away from the German air force by R.A.F. victories over massed attacking methods.

BEHIND ENEMY LINES—Picture now in British possession of a German flight commander instructing his crew at an airfield in France just before taking off for a raid on British objectives. In the background is a Stuka bomber. (Acme telephoto).

There was virtually no German air activity over England between midnight and dawn.

A single plane flew over one southeast coast town and dropped 12 bombs in a line along the edge of the sea, doing no damage. The raider headed for home with British fighters in pursuit.

A 70-year-old woman was killed in a raid on a Midlands town. A number of persons were injured, some fatally, in an attack last night on a southwest England town. Children were among the dead and injured in a Midlands raid. Rescue squads searched the wreckage of four houses for further victims. Half a dozen other buildings were damaged.

Children playing in a public park ran for an air raid shelter at the gates when the alarm sounded. Waiting under cover, they made so much noise with their singing that they failed to hear the all-clear signal when the raid was over.

In one residential area a short attack was made on the inhabitants by machine-gun fire.

GERMAN CLAIMS

BERLIN (CP)—Today's high command communiqué said: "At Alderburgh, in Suffolk, a munition factory was bombed. 'The railroad centre at Southwold and harbor facilities at Great Yarmouth were also effectively bombed, as well as a warship off Great Yarmouth."

"At Cambridge and Eastchurch, as well as Manston and Deal, our planes attacked airports with bombs and machine guns."

"Some heavy blows were struck at the harbor and rail terminal of Lowestoft and at warehouses and switches in Exeter."

"In the factory centre at Chelmsford big explosions were heard. The harbor and wharves at Faversham, Burryport and Pembroke were heavily damaged by bomb attacks."

"Off North Ireland we succeeded in sinking a 12,000-ton merchant ship by direct hits."

"In the North Atlantic, far from the north and west Irish coast, three additional merchant ships suffered heavy bomb hits."

Search Widens for Escaped Nazis

SOMEWHERE IN ONTARIO (CP)—Five German prisoners, blamed as ring leaders in the escape of Werner Koche, 28, Nazi naval lieutenant, from a federal prison camp in this northern Ontario area, were reported held in detention today while police continued a country-wide search for the fugitive.

One of those detained is reported to be a colonel in the German army, a holder of the Iron Cross. Authorities have expressed the opinion the 100-foot tunnel through which Koche escaped was the work of a group of prisoners and not of one man. No official announcement of penalties was made, however.

It was also reported unofficially a munition plant 30 miles from the internment camp was under heavy guard as a result of Koche's escape.

Earlier reports said the fugitive may have made his way to Toronto or headed for the United States border.

(In Toronto last night it was reported that Royal Canadian Mounted Police headquarters ordered a nationwide hunt for Koche. Every R.C.M.P. officer in Canada is said to be on a 24-hour call and every highway in the Dominion is being watched, as well as border points.)

Police said workmen had been discharged from the camp for conversing in the German language with prisoners and pointed out it would be almost impossible to get timber to line the tunnel unless some workmen were implicated in the escape.

An improvised radio set, discovered in a room at the end of a long, disused passageway in the prison barracks, had no connection with the break, Ottawa officials announced.

Discovery of a large, new dry battery which the prisoners could not have constructed led authorities to believe that fifth columnists had actively aided the Germans in their various undercover activities. A radio, clipped from a newspaper, was pasted on the wall of the room.

Brig. Gen. E. de B. Panet, senior officer in charge of internment camps, conducted a preliminary investigation Tuesday and in a statement said there was little doubt a mass delivery of prisoners was planned.

CIVILIAN ESCAPES

OTTAWA (CP)—Escape of a German civilian from a northwestern Ontario internment camp was announced today by Defence Minister Ralston. The man, who could speak no English, is believed to be hiding in the wild country which surrounds the camp. He was interned in Britain and brought to Canada for the duration of the war.

In a press interview today Col. Ralston described the escape from the northwestern Ontario camp as well as the escape of Werner Koche, a Nazi naval lieutenant, from a northern Ontario camp.

The minister expressed confidence the civilian would soon be caught because of the nature of the country in which he must be roaming. He said the man answered roll call at 12:30 p.m. Monday and was gone at 8:30 at night.

Before the press conference, the Defence Minister talked with Brig. Gen. E. de B. Panet, senior officer in charge of internment camps. General Panet was convinced it was an inside job.

"I do not assume a defensive position in the matter regarding these escapes," Col. Ralston added. "After all, it should be realized that there are 8,000 prisoners, more than half of whom arrived in the last four months and had to be provided for under stress of time."

CHANGE GUARD SYSTEM

He said members of the Canadian Active Service Force, would assume more the duties of police than sentries. There will be more walking around among the internees and less marching along sentry go."

Some of the guards were from companies of the Veteran Home Guards of the C.A.S.F., and others from regular C.A.S.F. units.

An investigation was being made on why, although the lieutenant's escape was discovered at 7 a.m., it was not reported until about 5 p.m.

ITALY NEEDS OIL

LONDON (CP)—Authoritative London sources said today Italy's oil supplies might become acutely short after 12 months of war and shortages were already apparent in the Italian stocks of raw materials.

These sources, basing their opinion on "latest information" on the Italian economic situation, said the Italian wheat harvest was estimated at 1,000,000 tons below the 8,000,000 hoped for this year.

There also are indications, they asserted, that Italy is so short of fats that she is competing with her ally, Germany, for purchase of oils and seeds in the Balkans.

Communists Arrested

LONDON (CP)—The Norwegian telegraph bureau here reported today Communist Party leaders in Norway were arrested by German police in a series of raids starting August 16.

DISCUSS WARSHIPS FOR BRITISH NAVY

WASHINGTON (AP)—Conference quickened on the destroyers-for-Britain question when the United States State Department made arrangements for a special conference today between Attorney-General Jackson, State Under-Secretary Sumner Welles, Admiral R. Stark and other high officials.

One informed official said at least three major problems were scheduled for discussion, but he refused to elaborate beyond saying the outright sale of destroyers was not among them.

The only definite clue to the nature of the conference was the fact Welles and Admiral Stark were to attend, and this was believed to indicate the subject matter was in the field of international affairs.

Greater R.A.F. Raids On Longer Nights

LONDON (CP)—Air Secretary Sir Archibald Sinclair told the Commons last night: "As the nights grow longer, so will the arm of our bomber squadrons lengthen and we shall strike ever deeper into the enemy's vitals. Our arm is reaching out tonight."

On such raids previously the Air Ministry has reported attacking German naval and air bases, shipping centres and oil depots in German-ruled territory from Norway to France. Raids also have been made on industrial northern Italy.

Sir Archibald said the Germans had lost 701 aircraft and 1,500 airmen since August 8.

Doukhobor Made Registrants Pay

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police here today held John A. Trofimoff, Vancouver Doukhobor, after registration officials said he was charging fees of $1.75 for men and 75 cents for women to register through him.

Charged with obtaining money under false pretences, he appeared in police court today where he pleaded not guilty, and was remanded until tomorrow.

E. M. Edgar, registrar for Vancouver centre, where Trofimoff was acting as deputy registrar, said the man had been legally empowered to register Doukhobors in the riding, but had been told specifically that no charges must be made. Mr. Edgar said he was using the home of a friend for a registration centre, and was accepting the fees there.

Bank of England Notes Are Banned

LONDON (CP)—The treasury announced a ban on the importation of Bank of England notes into the United Kingdom today on the ground considerable amounts fell into German hands in France and other German-occupied territory.

Special steps are being taken to permit existing holders of banknotes in neutral countries to realize on them. Inside the sterling area, Bank of England notes will continue to be freely negotiable and the prohibition will not apply to notes from Eire. Travelers from abroad will be permitted to bring in £10 ($44.50).

In Canada, where there is not a large total of sterling notes, holders will be given six days to realize upon them, it was announced.

Holders should remit their sterling notes to local banks and have them complete the transaction. A treasury official said the Bank of England had made arrangements with the Bank of Canada to ensure that no hardship is suffered by Canadians as a result of the new order.

NEW YORK (AP)—Foreign money brokers said today the British treasury ban on import of Bank of England notes would probably knock the bottom out of the currency market here.

The price of a one-pound Bank of England note was $3.30, highest in four or five months, just prior to the British announcement. Another quotation was not immediately obtainable, it was explained, while the market awaited the reaction of holders of the banknotes.

English notes in New York recently sold as low as $2 or $2.50 to the pound sterling.

The British order was interpreted in banking quarters as a possible move toward forestalling creation of a "black bourse" in banknotes. Such markets usually spring up when the currency of a nation has one value internally and another externally.

GREECE PREPARES

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—The Greek Army canceled all leaves for officers and men today and a responsible spokesman said "we will not be caught by surprise if Greece should be invaded."

Only yesterday, in the third move to strengthen the army within a week, the government called to arms several thousand men of a number of military classes.

ITALY READY

ROME (AP)—Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist editor, said today Italy and Albania were ready to defend Albania against "the Greco-British plan of offence," and accused Greece of a double manoeuvre designed to stifle nationalist sentiment among Albanian residents in Greece.

Writing in Il Giornale d'Italia, Gayda claimed Britain "was creating tension in the Balkans, and asserted British reports of anti-Italian uprisings in Albania were part of a scheme to 'create an alibi for Greece's policy of imperialistic advance into the territory of independent Albania'."

Britain Seeks U.S. Alliance

LONDON (CP)—The Associated Press today said unofficial, but well-informed sources indicated the British government was seeking a military alliance with the United States.

Canadian-American discussions on mutual defence are considered in these quarters to be the opening wedge in a British effort to obtain a full military accord between the United States and Britain, the A.P. said. The dispatch went on:

As envisaged now, such an alliance would embrace the defence of Canada and other British possessions in the western hemisphere, and, perhaps even more important, "would form the basis for common diplomacy in the far east at the conclusion of the European conflict," as one informant put it.

"The plain truth of the matter," said a neutral diplomat, "is that neither Great Britain nor the United States has a powerful friend left anywhere else in the world. It behooves them to get together and make the best of a sorry situation."

Official sources were reluctant to comment on the talks between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister King, which resulted in a decision to establish a joint defence board, but satisfaction was evident.

There were reports here the conversations progressed to the hypothetical naval defence of Canada and the United States in the event the British fleet were lost and to aerial defence not only on the seaboard, but from U.S. bases on the Pacific, such as Sitka and northern Alaska.

"It is a logical progression from these talks to a military alliance with Great Britain," said one reliable person. "I think we may regard the present Canadian-American talks as similar to those which, in the early nineteenth century, preceded creation of the entente cordiale between France and His Majesty's government."

NEUTRAL U.S. PREFERRED

Official British reluctance to comment may be explained by the presence of public opinion in Britain that a non-belligerent United States is more valuable to Britain than an America at war. In the latter event, these persons reason, the United States would have to use most of her planes and munitions for strengthening her own Panama and Atlantic defences, instead of letting Britain use them.

These persons probably are far more powerful than the smaller and more vocal body, including a sprinkling of Americans here, who are calling for immediate American intervention against Germany.

Indeed, there are evidences the activities of the second group are embarrassing the British government in its efforts to obtain war supplies from the United States. These activities, it is feared, are arousing isolationist sentiment in America by what one member of Parliament describes as "short-sighted and arrogant tactics."

Registrations Here Pass 40,000 Mark

Have you got your registration card?

If you have not got it tomorrow morning you may not legally hold a job.

Ride on any public transportation.

Enter a movie house, or place of entertainment.

Attend a public assembly.

At any of these places or on the street a policeman or peace officer may stop you and ask you to produce the card.

If you don't produce it you may be fined $20.

If you haven't registered you may be fined up to $200 or three months in jail, plus an extra $10 for every day you do not register.

And if you have registered but have given false information you may be fined up to $50.

The chances that Victorians will have any nonregistrants, however, will be pretty slim, according to Sydney Child, chief registrar.

It was estimated this morning that in the first two days of registration close to 34,000 people have been tabulated. Another 6,000 or 7,000 were registered in advance through business firms and institutions, bringing to more than 40,000 the number listed so far.

By the time registration closes at 10 tonight it is estimated close to 47,000 will be tabulated here.

Majority of people filled out their cards the first two days and business was slack today at most of the stations, Mr. Child reported.

Surprising thing about the registration here will be the growth of population it shows since the last census, Mr. Child said.

In the March election an indication of this was given when the voters' list jumped by about 6,000 to over the 35,000 mark. Since the registration takes in everyone over 16, it will give a clearer approximation of the population.

Proceedings here have been marked by the smooth operation of the whole organization and the co-operation of the public, Mr. Child said.

NO BOOTLEGGING

There have been no reports of "bootlegging" registration cards at so much a card as happened in Quebec. All volunteer workers, except three, who were ill, turned out and have done a conscientious job.

In Vancouver Monday a whole group of volunteer deputies suddenly excused themselves at the last moment in what the registrar described as apparently a concerted move.

Reports of the odd humorous incident continued to reach registration headquarters today.

There was the case of a man who said his racial origin was white. When the deputy smilingly questioned it, the man pulled out a knife, scratched his wrist and showed that he had good red blood.

WANTED MAN DEPUTY

At another station a woman came in, looked over the smiling faces of girl-deputies, and demanded to know where the male deputies were. She wanted to be registered by a man, possibly not wanting to divulge her age to any of the female deputies.

A complaint made to Mr. Child this morning concerned newspaper stories about what people had put on their cards, when the registrars are sworn to secrecy. Mr. Child had to explain there was nothing to stop people when they are registering from telling a reporter about themselves.

So far as deputies go they are sworn not to divulge any of the information given on the cards to other than the proper authorities.

One local store manager who had the foresight to lay in a stock of celluloid the same size as the cards reported he had sold out the first day and could have sold 10,000 more. One of the main complaints by registrants has been that the cards are too flimsy and easily destroyed by accident.

Registration of Chinese was practically complete this morning with 2,200 filed. The Japanese station on Pandora had taken 150 registrants.

MAYHEW EXPRESSES THANKS

R. W. Mayhew, M.P., accompanied by C. S. Henley, assistant registrar, visited every registration centre in the city this morning to express his personal thanks and those of the government to volunteer workers and the public for the co-operation they had shown in the registration.

The readiness of Victorians to assist in the registration had shown a general willingness on the part of the citizens to give their services to Canada in an emergency, Mr. Mayhew said, as he remarked on the prevailing atmosphere of cheerfulness encountered at all centres.

His visit to the City Hall followed the registration this morning of 98-year-old James Donegan, who climbed the stairs to the Council Chamber under his own power and told the registering officer he lived in "Paradise."

The official understood when he wrote down Mr. Donegan's address, 517 Paradise Street.

Across Canada the 16 and over citizens who had not yet registered, hurried to booths before tonight's deadline.

MAGNIFICENT RESPONSE

Mr. Justice T. C. Davis, deputy minister of war services in charge of registration, said at Ottawa that the response Monday and Tuesday had been "magnificent."

"Let us show the world that a democracy can move in a hurry and is capable of acting unitedly and voluntarily as quickly as any autocracy can do by compulsory regimentation," he said.

The department issued a final correction which reiterated that members of the Canadian Active Service Force, whether in Canada or overseas, need not register. Members of the nonpermanent active militia must do so.

In Kitchener, Ont., a woman who said she was born in 1860 stoutly contended she was only 40 years old. It wasn't a case of the woman being a leap-year baby and the patient registrar filled in Wilfrid Brousseau, 101, of St. Johns, Que., signed his form and commented: "I hope to do the same thing in the next war—25 years from now." He was registered at his home, but insisted on reading the questions himself, without glasses.

The town of Alberni at noon today reported nearly 1,200 registered out of an estimated 1,600 total, and Port Alberni officials said only about 500 remained to be registered out of an estimated 2,700.

At Prince Rupert slightly more than 4,000 persons registered Monday and Tuesday, or about two-thirds of the estimated total. Slightly more than two-thirds of the estimated total at Nanaimo had registered at closing time last night.

Young War Guests Happy in Victoria

Young "war guests" in Victoria seem to be settling down happily in their new surroundings. They find the beaches fun, the water cold, the ice cream different and the "Victoria" children friendly.

In increasing numbers now young English children are finding a haven, safe from guns and bombs, in Canada. To these small boys and girls this country is very large and very strange and quite different to anything they have ever known.

Ruth and Peter Mitchell, niece and nephew of Dr. and Mrs. W. M. Mitchell, had just come in from shopping with their aunt.

"We've only been here a few days," said stately, 16-year-old Ruth, "and we really haven't had time to sort out our impressions."

HE WANTS TO STAY

"I'm going to stay here for good!" piped up Peter, who has just turned 11. "I like it here! Besides, I couldn't bear the Atlantic ocean again."

"Peter was seasick on the boat, and train sick on the train," explained his sister. "He had a dreadful time."

"What has impressed me most in Canada are the mountains," Ruth said. "I've never seen or imagined anything like them before. That trip through the Rockies is marvelous, and that coast range that you can see from the beaches is really beautiful."

"Everything is so different in Canada," Ruth added. "The scenes are very unlike anything we have in England. I love the sea of course, and we plan to go to the beach as much as we can. The water is awfully cold."

Peter shivered. Then he brightened. "But it's nice and warm when you come out!"

"I'll tell you one thing I don't like about Victoria," Peter grinned. "And that's the trams. They shake so dreadfully!—He waved his hands back and forth in a demonstration. "They make me think I'm on the Atlantic again!"

"Peter!" Ruth admonished. "He doesn't like the Canadian ice cream either. I think it's much better than any we have at home."

"I don't like it," her young brother affirms in a decided tone.

Ruth and Peter came from East Surrey, where they have a country home and garden not far from the sea.

"I'm afraid we miss all our animals," they both agreed. "We left behind several dogs and cats, birds and, of course, our two ponies."

"We visited the pet shop this afternoon," volunteered Peter. "They didn't have any dogs today, but they had some lovely monkeys."

"Oh, Peter!" his sister laughed. "He wanted to buy one," she said. "But I don't know what we'd do with it."

"Anyway, I have an air gun, and a target on the back fence to shoot at. I bought some more 'bullets' today, so I guess I'll do some practicing now."

'JOLLY GOOD PLACE'

"I think Victoria's a jolly good place, whatever you do here," smiled Ruth.

"I'll say it is!" agreed Peter, as he disappeared in the direction of the back garden, air gun tucked under his arm.

An even younger opinion on Canada was given by Mark and Michael, young sons of Mrs. Stedman and Professor Ralph Stedman of St. Andrew's University, Dundee, Scotland, who are staying with their grandmother, Mrs. Crow Baker.

"We like everything!" was their unanimous answer to the question of what pleased them in the new country. Mark is seven, Michael just over four.

Their enthusiasm for Canada, and Victoria in particular, knows no bounds, and they both talked at once trying to enumerate the things that particularly intrigued them.

"The ice cream is good! It's smooth on your tongue," offered Mark.

"Good!" echoed Michael. Mrs. Stedman laughed. "They have both eaten several gallons of ice cream since they arrived here. It's much better than the kind we have at home."

Michael was climbing into a garden chair. It was one of the rocking kind.

FUNNY CHAIRS

Mark perceived what he was doing and immediately jumped into the chair with him. They both began rocking up and down. "This is what I like," yelled Michael gleefully. "These funny chairs that go back and forth—see!" They both demonstrated the agility of the rocker, almost tipping it over backwards.

"Though I never missed them," their mother laughed, "the children insist they have never seen a rocking chair before, and they're very taken with them."

Mark and Michael have met with such enthusiasm and friendliness from everyone in Canada, that at times they are quite overwhelmed.

"We're going to the beach this afternoon," Mark offered. "We're

John Larkin and his young brother Timothy hail from Cornwall. They have been out here only a few weeks but they picked a street in Victoria to live on what is well populated with young boys, and they have several dozen friends already.

"Oh fine! Like it fine!" John testified, a large grin flashing across his face, his Cornwall tongue striking an odd note in the shouts of the Canadian boys. John is just 11. Timothy, who

British Air Raids Worry Axis Partners

CHANCY, Switzerland (AP)—Britain's long-range bombing flights against industrial cities of northern Italy and southern Germany war industries are increasing the Petain government's fears. Germany and Italy will extend their occupation over a wider area of France, border reports said today.

Already the Germans have established airplane bases at the western slope of the Vosges and Jura mountains in an effort to intercept bombers.

French now are fearful British flights across the area still unoccupied by German soldiers will lead the Italians to demand air bases at Marseille and in the Rhone Valley and the Germans to extend their control to provide air bases south of the Loire River.

While in the north local authorities work in daily contact with the Germans, who are anxious to keep the administration running smoothly, in the south the Petain government is struggling with increasingly serious transportation and supply difficulties.

The German radio said in a dispatch from Vichy last night all railroad connections between the two zones have been closed temporarily and transportation of Belgian and French refugees to their homes has been held up.

BRITISH SOLDIERS LEAVE SHANGHAI

SHANGHAI (AP)—A mixed force of Seaforth Highlanders and the East Surrey Regiment today boarded the steamship Taksang for duty elsewhere, probably Hong Kong or Singapore.

The rest of the British forces here plan to leave August 26. Honors were rendered the departing soldiers by the United States Marines, who supplied the band which led them from the International Settlement's racetrack to the foot of Garden Bridge, leading to Japanese-occupied Hong Kong.

Regular sentries there saluted but otherwise the Japanese accorded no honors to the soldiers.

Pilot Training Progress Rapid

LONDON (CP)—The Empire air training scheme is ahead of schedule and plans are under way also for training airmen elsewhere, Sir Archibald Sinclair, Air Secretary, told the Commons yesterday.

"I cannot give figures, but the fact which shows substantial progress is being made is that whereas we were expecting to reach a certain figure of pilot production from Canada in July or even as late as August next year, we are now going to get to that figure by April," he announced.

"That will convince the House that substantial progress—more rapid progress than we were entitled to anticipate—is being made with the Empire air training scheme."

"How grateful we are for the energy, enterprise and drive which the Canadian government and the Canadian air staffs, with the assistance of Air Vice-Marshal L. D. D. McKean, who represents us there, have thrown into the scheme."

Registration Cards Sold in Quebec

MONTREAL (CP)—Registration officials said today they were investigating reports that national registration cards were being sold to evaders for $1 and $2.

The investigation came after a deputy registrar said sale of a card for $1 had come to his attention during the day. Officials said hundreds of cards had been stolen or "lost" in registration offices.

Alderman Omer Barriere said he had been informed of persons who had full packets of the cards in their possession.

M.P. in Uniform

KAMLOOPS (CP)—Thomas James O'Neill, 58-year-old Liberal member of Parliament for Kamloops constituency, has enlisted as a private in the second battalion of the Rocky Mountain Rangers. He paraded with his unit for the first time last night.

Mr. McAdam's Status

BUSINESSMEN WITHOUT ANY AXE TO grind, political leaders of all shades of thought, and hundreds of private citizens who have visited Great Britain in recent years, have literally showered tributes on Mr. W. A. McAdam and the work he has been doing as this province's efficient and tactful acting-agent-general in London. Since the outbreak of war, when he turned part of British Columbia House in Lower Regent Street into a "home from home" to men of the Active Service Force, still more glowing compliments have been paid to his happy knack of knowing what to do and when to do it. Nor is it difficult to endorse them all; we have seen Mr. McAdam "in action" in the normal days of other years; we have heard government members and representatives of the opposition in the Legislature ungrudgingly voice their appreciation of his faithful and remarkably able service. None has exaggerated.

When the morning paper says "the most admirably-equipped and best-learned representative British Columbia has had in London in a quarter of a century has been designated acting-agent-general for several years," and when it further argues that "in not confirming Mr. McAdam in the office as agent-general, the government of this province has been guilty of a miscarriage of the common decency of the recognition of merit," it very properly emphasizes the need to reconsider the status of the province's agent in the Empire's metropolis; first, because of the influential position his sound judgment and genial bearing have enabled him to establish for himself in British Columbia's interests; and, second, because circumstances with which the public may not be familiar continue an anomaly which the head of any progressive business would not countenance longer than it took to find a remedy. In other words, the Prime Minister would be acting in accordance with the wishes of the people of British Columbia were he to recommend to his colleagues in the cabinet that at the next session of the House the government take such action as may be necessary to elevate Mr. McAdam to the agent-generalship, initiate legislation requisite to preserve his position, and to safeguard the emolument to which he eventually would be entitled in reward for outstanding service.

The Colonist observes that "the full title is reserved, presumably, for some party politician, but such an appointment will not be made during the war." We do not think this contention is sound; in any event, surely no member of the existing government would consider taking the post now or after the war. Who among its members could fill the bill as well as Mr. McAdam is, of course, altogether beside the point. But it is safe to suggest that if the acting-agent-general, after 17 years at British Columbia House, were to be saddled with another appointee in the premier position without consideration of his just due, the government guilty of such a disregard of its duty and responsibility to the taxpayers of this province would encounter repercussions from which it would not easily recover. Two have occupied the main post since the death of Mr. F. C. Wade, K.C., in 1924. Neither was chosen because he was better qualified than Mr. McAdam—who, of course, naturally had to train them for a field of activity to which they went as virtual apprentices. And he has completed nearly six years and five months in his present status!

No Food For Nazis

AMONG THE MANY THINGS WHICH Mr. Churchill has made plain for all the world to meditate is Britain's intention to permit no food to reach Nazi-dominated territory until the danger of Germany stealing it for the Germans has been removed. He naturally disliked to record the nation's resolve in such blunt and unequivocal terms; but as one United States newspaper editorial says today, the British-Prime Minister is not given to wasting time "in little manoeuvres of shabby concealments or small-minded and illusory hopes." On the contrary, to quote the New York Herald-Tribune, he speaks for a Britain "which politely, but flatly, tells us that the food blockade will not be raised, because it is a Britain which knows exactly what she is doing and has the courage of the course to which she has set her hand."

Mr. Churchill does not say he is "ten times more confident of victory" now than he ever was. That type of wishful thinking belongs to the appeasing mentality. The present Prime Minister is "the indomitable leader of an indomitable people" who learned from him three months ago just where they stood, what they could expect, and what his government would do to help them. That was exactly what they wanted to know; they could deal with the truth because they were not afraid of it. What has happened in recent months, therefore, has given Mr. Churchill the confidence in the final outcome of which he spoke yesterday when he visualized a victorious offensive next year or the year after. In the meantime, incidentally, the naval blockade is the stout ally of the Royal Air Force and an indomitable people who thrive on plain talk and courageous leadership.

Half the world doesn't know, from hour to hour, how the other half lives, if it still does.

Having a Bad Time

ACCORDING TO AUTHORITATIVE NEUTRAL reports, the inhabitants of the industrial Ruhr region are strongly forbidden to write to their compatriots in any other part of Germany, the plain inference being that there is so much to tell of material destruction and mental anguish that uncensored narratives might have a serious effect on the nation's morale generally.

Although we may be inclined to read into such reports more than justified by fact, it is not difficult to believe that throughout Westphalia as a whole a very considerable amount of useful damage has been done by the Royal Air Force, useful damage on our account because this area still embraces iron and coal and steel industries of vast magnitude. To the great munition works at Essen, of course, British bombers have paid their respects so often that more reliance no doubt now is being placed on the products of factories in eastern and central Germany than from the home of the Krupps. But it should be remembered that these visitations began immediately after the outbreak of war, first by reconnaissance flights for photographic information, and afterward by way of intimating to the Germans that all important targets had been systematically and accurately mapped. The unrelenting policy the Royal Air Force has pursued, every night and in numerous daylight raids, over many months has naturally demoralized the industrial fabric of the region and made life one long hell for hundreds of thousands of the inhabitants.

Another condition which the people of the Ruhr valley are possibly contemplating with more than a little apprehension is the prospect of still greater attention from the Royal Air Force—now stronger than ever and growing stronger all the time—as the nights get longer and Germany's long-advertised subjugation of Great Britain and the British Empire fails to materialize.

'They'll Do It Every Time'

IT IS NOT SURPRISING THAT A GROUP of Conservative members of the House of Commons are urging Mr. Churchill to reduce the proposal of 99-year leases of British defence bases to the United States to a shorter period of from 15 to 21 years. They advance the argument that the time they stipulate is of sufficient duration "to protect the United States against Nazi aggression and to allow a reasonable period after the conclusion of the war for the readjustment to pre-war conditions."

One of the fine points about the Prime Minister's gesture to the United States was that the offer had no strings to it and did not in any way constitute a bargain. It is to be hoped that debate on the length of the leases will not be used as a peg on which to hang an argument modeled on some phases of Imperial outlook which ought to be conveniently forgotten. For it may as well be recognized by those who are inclined to dish out "patriotism by the imperial pint"—Mr. Churchill's phrase of a long-ago pre-war day—that hope of reversion to conditions existing prior to September 3, 1939, died when Britain took up the battle, alone, for the freedom of men's souls.

Dinosaur footprints found in a Colorado mine were on the ceiling. It would appear then that conditions were very much as they are today.

A German officer has been able in less than two months to construct a wooden-lined tunnel from a Canadian prison camp and make good his escape. At the same camp a secret radio transmitting set has been found under the roof. This only after two prisoners had escaped. Today a civilian is reported missing from another camp. Surely here is a case for official inquiry and official explanation. On all the assurances of elaborate precautions, we were led to believe that the camps were escape-proof. Apparently, their control is not all it should be.

A GRAND PIECE OF NEWS

From Today's London Press, by Telegraph
Daily Herald: Prime Minister Churchill's announcement of the government's offer to lease to the United States defence bases on Britain's trans-Atlantic territories is "a grand piece of news." Now those territories become something more than "possessions" of Great Britain. They'll be the strong points of democracy.

Daily Mail: The nation welcomes the announcement as the proper development of inevitably increasing co-operation between ourselves and the United States, not only in defence of common liberties of mankind but in that wider sphere of action where we can jointly secure the new world order.
Daily Telegraph: The offer will be recognized as a momentous and perhaps historic act. With the good will of Canada and Newfoundland as well as of the West Indies any insecurity the United States may feel can be eliminated. Good will cannot be lacking when the self-interest is so direct and so strong. The reinsurance against aggression, as it may be called, will be mutual. There can be nothing to fear and much to gain in receiving as tenants a kindred and friendly people who have always been such near neighbors.

The Times: The offer is a practical recognition of the repeated affirmation by United States leaders that the defence of their own hemisphere is bound up with an Allied victory. No transfer of sovereignty is involved. And if, as Mr. Churchill remarked, the organization of the Empire and the republic become in consequence more closely mixed up together for some purposes than before, it is the fruit of a process which he rightly described as inevitable.

Parallel Thoughts

"And he lifted up his eyes on his disciples, and said, Blessed be ye poor; for yours is the kingdom of God.—Luke 6.20.
To be poor and seem to be poor is a certain way never to rise.—Goldsmith.

Bruce Hutchison

WARDERS

POLITICS MOVES in a mysterious course its wonders to perform. Only two or three weeks ago Mr. Mackenzie King told Parliament that it was no time to talk about a defence treaty with the United States. Last Sunday he and Mr. Roosevelt announced that Canada and the United States would set up a joint defence board, to make sure that, if this continent is threatened, both nations will work together in every detail of defence. It is a treaty in everything except name. And while we were assured that a treaty would be misunderstood in the United States and here, apparently this other arrangement is perfectly satisfactory. It all depends, apparently, on what flavor you put on the bill. At all costs you must have some flavoring on it, or the public will refuse it. I have always doubted this, always held that the politicians underestimated the public intelligence, but no matter. We have got the deal we wanted, call it what they will.

A couple of months back I ventured to write from Washington that such a deal would have to be made. I did so because it was quite obvious. Being obvious, it was vigorously denied. There is nothing like the obvious to make people disbelieve. They will believe any absurdity, the wildest fairy story, the most incredible lie. But the obvious is instantly rejected these days because people have a magazine and movie mind. They expect the plot to turn out a surprise in the last chapter.

UNION JACK

JOINT DEFENCE has come, and with it a clarification of the presidential election. Mr. Willkie is going to try to hang the Union Jack around Mr. Roosevelt's neck. He is going to make an issue out of the President's foreign policy, which he largely supports. One knew the temptation would be too great. The only way to defeat Mr. Roosevelt is to convince the people that he will involve the country in war. Mr. Willkie makes this charge in his opening speech. He will keep hammering it. Woodrow Wilson took the same line against Mr. Hughes in 1916 (the policies of the two parties being reversed). And as soon as he had got elected on the ground that he would keep America out of the war, Mr. Wilson took it in.

It is amazing to observe how the statements of politicians can get twisted. When Mr. Willkie made his speech I was far from a radio, but at the end of the day I met a group of people who had heard him. They announced gleefully that he had advocated taking America into the war. I couldn't believe it, but they insisted they had heard him on the radio. He had said, of course, precisely the opposite. And these people were among the more intelligent of the population. Thousands of others must have interpreted the speech in the same way. What are you going to do with a democracy like that?

NO SUCH MAN

WHICH REMINDS ME that when I was going to high school we had a debate and I quoted a speech by one Franklin D. Roosevelt, assistant Secretary of the U.S. Navy. One of the judges, a fine old high school teacher now deceased, acted as judge of the debate and vigorously attacked me for misrepresenting facts. He said there was no such person as Franklin D. Roosevelt. There was only Theodore Roosevelt. I wish that fine old teacher were alive today. I believe he would be shaken by the available evidence from Ogdensburg, New York.

SMUGGLERS

OGDENSBURG WAS a specially suitable spot for Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. King to choose for their historic conference. In 1812 the Canadians went across the St. Lawrence River from Prescott and burned Ogdensburg to the ground. We, the people of Prescott, kept going over there from then on. In my youth we used to go over in the winter, walking on the river ice, in order to bring back varied booty, smuggled through the Canadian customs. I personally have purchased enough toys in Ogdensburg, N.Y., and brought them across the ice to entitle me to many years of imprisonment.
And I can remember all the aged and virtuous ladies of the town, who would have been horrified at the thought of any crime against the law, waddling across the ice from Ogdensburg with so many yards of smuggled cloth and lace and other valuta under their skirts that they could hardly waddle up the hill from the river.
I have always felt, therefore, that there was a peculiarly close connection between Canada and its neighbor via Ogdensburg. Why, my own purchases in Ogdensburg have been quite sufficient to "compensate the Americans for the burning of the town in 1812."

ENGLAND UNCONQUERABLE

Alone she stands, embattled to the skies—Proud, defiant, grim,
Grim with a stern resolve
That decency shall not depart this world.
That words shall still be bonds,
That men shall still be free.

This England shall be blasted into dust,
Her cities razed, her fields lie desolate,
Ere Britishers to tyrants shall bow low
And live as Nazis would have free men live.

The thrust is on
The savage foam strikes
With all the might of savage, ruthless power.
Stands England where she did?
She stands—
And though the Empire last a thousand years
Men still will say,
"This was their finest hour."
ALLAN FEEBLES.

IT IS FALSE

IKNOW OF nothing more effectively subversive, in the true sense of the word, than the speech made in Montreal last week by Justice Eouard Surveur of the Quebec Superior Court, which was duly passed by the censor for publication in the Canadian press on Saturday, August 17. Nothing could be better calculated to do real damage to the British cause, especially in the province of Quebec, than this speech delivered on the eve of the national registration effort (not to mention the Battle for Britain). The judge pleads for "caution and moderation" in criticizing the Vichy government. His plea is the more insidious because the dignity and grace of the language of the court might conceivably conceal the plain fact that it is based on glaring untruths.

He states: "When the politicians' work was done, when Reynaud, Maurois and Weygand had made fruitless appeals to the army, the Allies and the neutrals, the politicians withdrew and left the military men in charge of the situation."
This is a downright falsehood. Reynaud had not made "fruitless appeals" to the Allies. The only effective ally then left was the British Commonwealth. The British Prime Minister did not turn a deaf ear to France. He rushed troops there, including our own Canadians. He offered France complete organic political union with Britain. He suggested that Britain and France continue to fight side by side, as their strength permitted; that they win the war and face the future as one, together bearing the cost. That proposal was outvoted in the cabinet only by the margin of 13 to 10. It was then, and then only, that Reynaud was forced to resign; and that the "men of Vichy" took control.

Justice Surveur further states that he "observed full fealty to England but was convinced that it was in the best interests of Britain and France to guard against action and words which might turn the French people away from their governments."
What are these "governments" of France? The catspaw captive government, of course, is that composed of the "men of Vichy."

FROM THE CONDUCTOR OF THE THEATRE UNDER THE STARS

To the Editor:—You will be glad to know that the first season at the Theatre Under the Stars here in Vancouver is proving a real success. Plans are already being made for next year.

The young artists we brought over from Victoria have all done excellent work and received high praise, including Thelma Johns as Leonora in "Il Trovatore"; Peggy Moore as Marguerite in "Faust"; Sheila Conway as Mimosa in "The Geisha"; Fraser Lister as Wun-Hin in "The Geisha"; David Oldham as Reggie Fairfax in "The Geisha"; and James A. McVie as Cunningham in "The Geisha."

Victoria can really be proud of the reputation these young artists have made before audiences of many thousands.

I thought you would appreciate a few lines. The press here have been most enthusiastic.

BASIL HORSFALL.

NO CANADIAN BREED

To the Editor:—I notice a good deal of argument around the registration stations on the question of "racial origin," over whether Canadian-born should be put down as English, Scotch or Irish. In looking up the dictionary on the meaning of the word racial, we find it says race or breed. In my opinion, this means that any person born of British parents is of the British race or breed. The house, town, province, county, parts of Great Britain, the colonies, or Dominions are all within the British racial empire. Therefore, persons born of Empire stock within the boundaries are British.

OLD MEDICINE BOTTLES

To the Editor:—At the request of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, the Boy Scouts are making a collection of empty medicine bottles on Saturday, August 24.

The area covered will be the whole of the Greater Victoria district in which Scout groups are located.

The general public would help greatly with this collection if they would leave any empty bottles they may have on their verandas on Saturday morning.

WHEAT STORAGE ADVICE

From Fort William Times-Journal
In view of the fact that many western farmers will be forced to provide storage for wheat on their farms, Major H. G. L. Strange, research director of the Searle Grain Company, advises all farmers who use the combine harvester to be sure that the grain is dead ripe before cutting. There will be no chance to turn the grain over and, if it is put into a bin while it contains too much moisture, it is liable to heat and become "bin-burnt," lowering the grade of "number one" wheat to "rejected."

"My family used to get finicky and tired of bread. But now we serve VITA-WEAT Crispbread they eat well and are always eager for meals."

Peek Frean's VITA-WEAT is a crunchy-munchy crispbread made of whole wheat. It is particularly good for children, providing healthy exercise for the teeth. The minerals contained in the whole wheat help little bodies to make bone and grow, and its vitamins help to give a balanced diet. Children love it. Everybody does. You will, too. ONLY DISABLED EX-SERVICE MEN EMPLOYED

THE RED CROSS WORKSHOP

Distributed Much Reading Matter To Troops

Generous response was made by the public to the appeal for detective and short stories made by Mrs. J. Quinn and the men of the three services were most appreciative, she reported at the meeting of war convalescers of the I.O.D.E. held on Monday evening at headquarters, with Mrs. J. L. Gates, convener, in the chair.

It was decided to set aside a special afternoon for receiving supplies, and a special evening each month for future meetings. Supplies will be received on the third Thursday of each month and the meetings will be held on the fourth Monday evening.

Comforts turned in during the month included 129 pairs of socks, 58 sweaters, 29 scarfs, six "housewives," 18 cloth helmets, 16 pairs of wristlets, two wool helmets, five pairs of mittens, four pairs of gloves, two wool caps, four Air Force sweaters all valued at $289.75. Many letters of thanks were received.

The convener reported that Municipal Chapter had obtained a generous contribution of materials towards national defence, a gift which was much appreciated.

Mrs. Quinn reported that 65,000 magazines had been distributed during the past month to ships, forts and camps. Ships due to leave port were provided with bound books, cards, games, puzzles and quantities of magazines. Detective and short-story magazines were still required to continue the supply to the services, and anyone having any to give was asked to telephone G 3558.

Lauds Heroic Girl On Torpedoed Ship

By L. V. HUNTER

Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON - A young sea heroine was among the 21 survivors of a torpedoed Jamaica-bound freighter who landed at a northern Ireland port recently. She is Meryl Reed, 12-year-old Liverpool schoolgirl, who was saved along with six other evacuees aboard the 5,000-ton vessel which was attacked with out warning and sunk two days after leaving Great Britain. The evacuees were going to the United States by way of Jamaica.

Meryl was in one of these lifeboats launched in the stormy seas. Thirty-one of the freighter's crew were missing in two lifeboats which became lost but the third was picked up after long hours in the tumultuous sea by a Yugoslav freighter.

A crew member called the Liverpool girl "a little heroine" and said she gave her coat to her small brother and put another coat around some orphan children. The crew also recommended her to the Girl Guides for a medal in recognition of her courage.

The vessel, formerly German and seized at the London docks at the outbreak of the war, was struck twice by torpedoes. The first one killed seven persons and blew away the stern. The ship sank in less than half an hour.

Crew members said that after the first torpedo hit they had only five minutes to get those aboard the vessel into lifeboats.

Engagements

LINNELL-MOIR

The engagement is announced of Lillian May, youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moir, Qu'Appelle, Sask., to Hubert George, youngest son of Mrs. H. Linnell, 1028 Pandora Avenue, and Mr. H. Linnell, Cranbrook, B.C. The wedding will take place quietly on August 31.

A carload lot of B.C. Red Cross supplies was shipped a few days ago from the Provincial Red Cross Warehouse, Vancouver, to a distributing Red Cross centre in England. A major item was 26 cases of red gloves, 414 articles; two cases of all types and for all ages - jockey, children's and adults' clothing. Quilts, blankets, and crib covers were included.

Other items of the shipment were: Eleven cases sweaters, 2,298 articles; 15 cases socks, 3,356 pairs; six cases bed jackets, 411 articles; four cases pneumonia jackets, 801 articles; 12 cases pyjamas, 1,476 articles; seven cases dressing gowns, 325 articles; one case, helmets, 414 articles; two cases Hampton pads, 720 articles; three cases mattress pads, 492 articles; 17 cases sheets, 1,243 articles; one case triangular slings, 112 articles; four cases handkerchiefs, 13,296 articles; one case abdominal binders, 324 articles; nine cases towels, 3,738; seven cases pillow cases, 3,053 articles; six cases surgeons' tops and surgeons' gowns, 528 articles; 13 cases hospital gowns, 1,734 articles; one case bedpan covers, 540 articles; five cases flannellette bandages, 3,010 articles; eight cases cotton bandages, 8,075 articles; one case face masks, 1,775 articles.

This was the first carload lot of Red Cross supplies sent from B.C. Both national railways give free transportation. Although the car was shipped C.N.R., 625 shipments have been made by the C.P.R. since February.

Mothers Will Give Squadron of Hurricanes

LONDON (CP) - Mothers all over the United Kingdom are responding to the appeal of Mrs. V. E. Gower, mother of two men serving in the forces, who wants to present the Royal Air Force with a squadron of Hurricane fighters as a "mothers' token of appreciation."

The squadron, to cost $56,000 ($249,000), will be purchased through the "Empire Mothers' Hurricane Fund" and will be presented in behalf of mothers of men serving in the R.A.F. "We women," said Mrs. Gower in launching her appeal, "have provided the men; now we must provide them with planes."

Mothers, grandmothers, godmothers or mothers-in-law are asked to contribute to the fund which already is off to a good start.

It is hoped to have the first unit of the "Mothers' Squadron" available by September 3, said Mrs. Gower, whose younger son, P.O. Desmond Gower, has been missing 13 weeks.

The Women's Benefit Association Review No. 1 met on Monday evening with the president, Mrs. M. Stephens, in the chair. Refreshments were served later by Mrs. W. Henson. The next regular meeting of the review has been advanced to September 9, when a sale of home cooking will be held, the convener being Mrs. M. Bays Back in First Place

Sports Mirror

By PETE SALLAWAY

ROBERT WILLIAM ANDREW Feller, pitching for his 23rd victory with about five weeks of play remaining, reminds us that he may be the first major league baseball pitcher to win 30 games since Jerome Herman Dean performed the feat in 1934.

Bob Feller will start in about a dozen more engagements and may be credited with a game or two in the role of relief worker as the Cleveland Indians battle the Detroit Tigers down the American League stretch. With around 200 strikeouts, Feller is far ahead of his 1939 pace in that department, too. The former Iowa farm hand fanned 246 last season and 240 in 1938.

He may never equal the immortal Rube Waddell's big-league record of 343, but his string is greater when the ball and the pitcher are taken into consideration. Feller, who will not be 22 until November, is even more remarkable than his figures.

ALVA BRADLEY, president of the Cleveland club, offered to send Rapid Robert to college, but the kid was not interested.

Raised by his father to be a pitcher, it is Feller's ambition to be the best and the truest. Along that line, he certainly has obtained a flying start.

Feller thinks of nothing but baseball. . . frequently beats the groundkeeper to the park.

A model of deportment and as fine a boy as ever walked, Feller is the ideal team player.

Bob was almost indignant when Oscar Vitt suggested he return to Cleveland to escape the heat following his 19th victory in St. Louis.

"My place is with the team," he said, "and that's where I want to stay. The heat doesn't bother me any more than it bothers anyone else."

If Feller has a favorite in baseball it probably is Steve O'Neill, who broke him in.

He almost cried when he heard that the old catcher was not to return as the Cleveland manager in 1938.

FELLER IS HIGHLY SENSITIVE. He thought a lot of Vitt until the manager made that celebrated crack about him in Boston.

George Selkirk had stolen home on him in New York and Joe Gordon had swiped second to set up the winning run. The Red Sox were taking liberties on the bases in Boston when Vitt cracked:

"There's the ace who's supposed to win the pennant for me! He ought to be back in the minors, learning how to hold men on bases."

Feller was hurt. . . joined the rebellion against Vitt. . . swung into the march on Alva Bradley's office.

Oscar Vitt should have had more sense than to make a crack like that about a pitcher like Bob Feller.

Mioland Wins Derby

Another entry for three-year-old championship entered the picture when Charles S. Howard's Mioland romped through fetlock-deep mud in Chicago's Washington Park to win a three-length victory in the $62,150 American Derby. Above, Mioland leads Sirocco, the favorite, and Weigh Anchor, who ran third, under the wire. Gallahadion, Kentucky Derby winner, was fourth.

Shooting Marvel

Cripple Trap Champ

VANDALIA, O. (AP)—Trap shooting's new North American clay target king—65-year-old Forest McNeil of Houston, Texas—cracked 200 straight to beat the best in the land for trapdom's toughest title. It was the only perfect count and it gave McNeil a championship he had tied for in 1920 and 1935, only to lose in shootouts.

In 1920 he won the British championship with the first perfect score ever shot in the British Isles, taking permanent possession of a solid gold sugar bowl, placed in competition by Queen Anne in 1703.

Four years ago he fell from a building in Houston, suffering a broken back and a crushed left arm. His left hand was amputated at the wrist, but when McNeil regained consciousness, he had the hand sewed back on. The fingers don't function and two inches of flesh and bone are missing from the arm, but he asks no odds of anyone.

Surgeons told him he probably would never shoot again, but two years after his accident he was back at the "roaring range" with a caddy to carry and load his gun. He fired the entire program.

Mrs. Lela Hall, Strasburg, Mo., housewife, won the women's championship. It was the fifth victory in six years for Mrs. Hall.

In the preliminary game, McLean's Bakery, showing superior passing and shooting, strengthened their grip on first place in the intermediate league by handing Art Chapman's Owl Drive squad a 19 to 12 setback.

Hugh Thomson Has Joined Air Force

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP)—One of Canada's outstanding milers was today preparing to exchange the winged jersey he wore at the Berlin Olympic Games in 1936 for the wings of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Hugh Thomson, Nanaimo athlete and Canadian Olympic runner, was honored here Monday night by the Nanaimo Amateur Athletic Association, as he prepared to leave for active service. He will soon leave for duty with the R.C.A.F., perhaps some day to bomb the place where he ran under the Olympic flag.

Holder of the British Columbia mile title, he was kept off the last Canadian Empire Games team which went to Australia because of a broken leg.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of fluid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up, your stomach is bloated, and you feel awful. A mere bowel movement doesn't take away the gas as well. It takes these good old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of a natural bile but have no alcohol or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else.

Douglas Street Parking

Clashes in Council On Call for Action

The Douglas Street parking issue may have absorbed a lot of punishment, but it isn't out yet. The City Council dragged it from its corner yesterday afternoon, punched it around for a lively half hour and then sent it back, groggy but conscious, for another go-around when the council assembled in full strength.

Net results of yesterday's activity were nil, but they brought out some interesting sidelights, including an enunciation by Mayor McGavin of his opinion regarding the legality of double parking.

Armed with a sheaf of anti-angle parking letters from transportation companies, insurance adjusters, delivery agencies and two Douglas Street property holders, the public works committee recommended no change in existing regulations, which call for parallel parking on a stretch of the roadway.

Alderman Archie Willis took exception to the recommendation, stating if the majority of the council was correct in its opinion, the minority obstructing resolution to angle parking were "penalizing" merchants on the street who claimed they were losing business.

He discounted the results of the pedestrian traffic count used by the public works committee as an indication that the number of potential shoppers counted this year had increased over last. The day on which the count was taken was, he said, one of the biggest in the city's history so far as shopping money was made available through payrolls.

The minority, Alderman Willis contended, were interfering with the business of the Douglas Street merchants.

Alderman Ed Williams, public works committee chairman, objected to the use by Alderman Willis of the term "penalizing" in reference to the merchants.

Alderman Willis, he said, had no evidence to support such a statement while he, Alderman Williams, "knew for a fact" that not all the merchants were losing money.

Alderman Worthington drew attention to an early ruling by the mayor in which the chief magistrate reminded the council he had promised no action would be taken on the matter unless the council members were all present.

Alderman B. J. Gadsden was absent.

Alderman Williams noted that the pledge had not been supported by resolution and action could be taken.

Alderman S. H. Okell sprang to the support of angle parking advocates. The merchants had told the aldermen they were losing business. Was not that evidence?

He asked: Did Alderman Williams suggest they were not telling the truth? He reviewed the parking issue, stating that he, while opposed to parallel parking from the beginning, had agreed to give it a trial.

That trial, he said, had proved beyond a doubt parallel parking was not successful. Business, he claimed, was being diverted elsewhere. The city was making Douglas Street a speedway. As a compromise he believed the council should revert to angle parking, with the angle reduced.

Alderman W. L. Morgan argued the parallel scheme was merely a trial before reporting on his findings in a traffic survey up and down the coast. On wide streets in major towns, he said, angle parking was allowed.

RELIEVES BUSINESSMEN
Replying to Alderman Williams, Alderman Willis declared he had no reason to doubt the word of the merchants, that he would not like to say they were lying. There need be no breach of faith on the mayor's part in passing a resolution calling for an amending by-law to change the regulations, since such a by-law would require time for preparation and a vote need not be taken until the full council was present, he said.

Alderman Williams declared he was not saying the merchants were lying, but he knew not all were losing money. He called for reading of letters supporting the position taken by his committee. The letters, all highly favorable to parallel parking, were read from various sources, including the B.C. Electric Railway Co. Ltd., the Vancouver Island Coach Lines, the Empire Cigar Store, Ambergine Products Ltd., Mrs. E. Edwards, property owner; R. J. Crombie, insurance adjuster; Shallock Nalms, insurance broker; the Victoria Baggage Co., the Old English Beverage Company, MacDonalds Consolidated, Stocker's Ltd., the Island Freight Co. Ltd., and the Crystal Spring Beverage Co. Cartage firms said deliveries were greatly facilitated by parallel parking.

BREAKING LAW
All arguments were from one class, the transportation interests, Alderman Okell declared.

"The best argument they've got is that it's easier to double-park and break the law," he contended. "It's against the law to double-park. Why doesn't the police commission see the law is enforced?" asked Alderman Morgan.

"Do you think every person who double-parks should be pulled?" the mayor queried.

"Yes," Alderman Morgan replied. "I'll pass that along to the chief of police," the mayor replied, adding "My opinion is that if a driver is at the wheel of a car and the engine is running it is not breaking the law." When cars were double-parked, the engine turned off and no one left in the car, he thought an illegal condition arose.

Alderman Willis told the mayor he would not ask anyone to break his word and as a result was prepared to withdraw his motion for an amending by-law until the full council was present, but he asked for a time limit on the issue, irrespective of council absentees, but no time was fixed.

Tea Rationing Bothers English
The fact that rationing prohibits having a cup of tea after an air raid alarm is the only concern which relatives in England of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Kirkpatrick, 3369 Quadra Street, have during these trying days, according to a letter from their niece, Miss Georgina Adecock, Derby.

"When the warning goes, my, it is a scramble," Miss Adecock writes, "and we cannot make a cup of tea after it, that's why we were rationed, people were using too much."

Although Hitler's "air blitz" has caused extensive damage in various parts of England it certainly does not seem to have caused the people much worry if Miss Adecock's letter is any criterion. She makes only brief reference to the war and devotes the remainder of her letter to describing various evenings when friends came for dinner and what the menu was.

"Now that the nights are getting cooler I take a hot water bottle down in the shelter every night and put it between the shawls, and a bottle of milk and a flask of boiling water," she says. "We light our little lamp and screen the light, all ready for the fray. Our little bits of valuables are all in a case ready to take with us when the warning goes."

Miss Adecock enclosed for her uncle and aunt samples of strips of cotton which she has tacked around the windows of the family home to prevent the shattering of glass in the event of bombing raids. "The windows look queer. Everybody makes their own design, some are a work of art and some are done with brown paper, some with black or grey."

INJURES SKULL
Suffering from a possible skull fracture, concussion and lacerations of the head, William Mahwinney, 2535 Government Street, was in Jubilee Hospital today in serious condition as the result of a 25-foot fall yesterday.

Mahwinney dropped from a plank scaffolding on to a pile of machinery while working at the Victoria Machinery Depot.

He was working with another man on the scaffolding when one of them stepped too near to one end, tipping the plank and throwing both off. The other man received only a shaking up in his fall.

Mahwinney was taken to hospital in the C. and C. ambulance and Dr. A. D. Bechtel attended him. He was reported resting comfortably after a good night's sleep.

Seek Meeting With B.C.E.R. Co.

Mayor McGavin was authorized by the City Council yesterday to arrange a meeting as soon as possible between the city public utilities committee and officials of the B.C. Electric Railway Company, to discuss maintenance of streets used by street cars and general questions involved in the continued operation of that transportation system for the duration of the war. Letters making preliminary arrangements for such a meeting were read at the council session.

Six property sales, yielding $4,510 to the city, were approved on the recommendation of the lands committee. A six-foot strip on the east side of St. Charles between Despard and Warren Gardens was sold for $50, a lot on the south of May between Cook and Cambridge brought $250, another on the south of Vimy between Moss and the end of Vimy $250, a third on the south of Michigan between Alma Place and Menzies $1,000 on terms, a 34-foot strip on the south of Pandora between Rockland and Beverly Place $100, and a property on the south of Fisgard between Government and Store $2,860. A condemnation order was passed on a Pandora Avenue structure.

A public works committee recommendation calling for a sewer extension on Catherine Street was tabled indefinitely on a six-to-four division, Alderman J. A. Worthington, S. H. Okell, A. C. Dewar, D. D. McTavish and W. L. Morgan voting with the mayor in favor of that action. In opposition were Alderman W. H. Davies, Archie Willis, Ed Williams and T. W. Hawkins.

A resolution of commendation was passed to the Women's Auxiliary to the Air Service by the council in recognition of that body's successful air supremacy campaign.

The question of creating the section of Burnside Road within the city an arterial highway, as suggested by Saanich, was referred to the public works committee for a report.

Disatisfied with the phrasing of a U.B.C.M. resolution covering erection of traffic signs at crossings used by school children, the council decided to refer the issue to the city solicitor for correction. A suggestion was also advanced that delegates to the Union of British Columbia Municipalities convention, at which Victoria resolution will be considered, should hold a preliminary meeting to study the different motions before attending the municipal gathering.

Applications of the Bayliss

Beacon Hill Park, reaching new popularity through the "Cheer-up" parties there, will be reserved for the non-commercial enjoyment of the citizens, with collections being made for war work only. Decision to take that stand was reached by the parks committee yesterday after the council members had expressed their opinions on a request by the Jubilee Hospital for permission to take a collection at the next concert. The council emphasized the point it had nothing against the hospital but wished to protect the position of the park in relation to commercial incursions.

Council Passes Works Projects

The City Council yesterday swept through a lengthy public works committee report, giving approval to all its recommendations with the exception of one dealing with parallel parking.

Authority was given for laying of sewer and water services for D. Masters at Windermere Place at a cost of $1,068 and $330 respectively. The city solicitor was instructed to inform Mrs. F. R. Carlow the city accepted no liability for injuries she allegedly sustained in a fall. Authorization was given the city engineer to proceed with the installation of sewer and water mains and for the construction of a macadam road to serve the new Pemberton subdivision off Foul Bay Road at a cost to the city of $400 for a sanitary sewer and $263 for a water main, the owner to pay $400 for the sewer and $654 for the macadam road.

Permission was refused for light pole placements on Newmarket Drive. Storm sewer connections for Burnside School Auditorium were approved at a cost of $192. Sick pay was granted an employee. A loading zone was granted the Britannia Branch, Canadian Legion.

The north side of Pandora from Blanshard east for 121 feet was established as a prohibited parking area, as were the east side of Blanshard from the north of Pandora for 104 feet and the north of Yates from the west side of Wharf to the waterfront. Two similar zones were created on Douglas for the benefit of the Empress Hotel and one was established on the north of View Street east of Quadra, at the request of the Western Air Command.

D. K. Kennedy, city building inspector, was instructed to represent the city at the Salt Lake City conference of Pacific Coast Building Officials from September 3 to 6, and construction of a surface drain on Belmont Avenue at an estimated cost of $1,796 was approved.

POWER CONFERS IN NEWFOUNDLAND
ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP Cable)—Canada's associate Defence Minister, Hon. C. G. Power, and a group of high-ranking Canadian army, navy and air officials conferred with authorities here today on Newfoundland defence matters.

The Canadian Air Minister met with the island's governor, Admiral Sir Humphrey Walwyn, Hon. L. E. Emerson, defence minister; Capt. W. R. Scherwell, Royal Navy, the governor's secretary, and Lieut. Col. W. F. Rendell, officer commanding Newfoundland's home defence forces.

They were expected to discuss the degree to which Canada would go to Newfoundland's assistance against any possible Nazi assault either by a hit-and-run raid or a more serious attempt at actual invasion.

It also was considered likely there would be discussion regarding the matter of port and other facilities for United States forces, should the United States government accept the British offer of bases in Newfoundland and the British West Indies, announced by Prime Minister Churchill.

TAXI QUESTIONS BEFORE COUNCIL

Setting a minimum rate for taxi service and enforcing use of meters in cabs was the main business dealt with by the Esquimalt Council at a short session last night.

The council heard W. T. Straith, representing all taxi owners of Greater Victoria who employ labor, argue in favor of setting a rate which would be enforced through police-inspected meters.

It was decided to introduce a by-law at the next meeting of the council dealing with the matter. Victoria and Oak Bay had already passed by-laws which will bring about a set rate and use of meters.

A petition signed by 72 persons living on Glen Street, Vaughan Street, Anson Street, Lamson Street, Munro Street, Kinver Street, Bewley Avenue, Greenwood Avenue and Wychbury Avenue was received, asking for an extension of the B.C. Electric Railway Co. feeder bus service through their districts.

The petition had been sent to the transportation company, who in turn had forwarded it to the council for study.

It was decided to have the foreman of public works, F. McCulloch, inspect the areas where additional service was asked to see how thickly populated they were.

Reeve Alex Lockley was appointed delegate to the annual convention of the B.C. Union of Municipalities in Revelstoke next month.

A building at 789 Lamson Street will be demolished and the property on which it stands will be put up for sale the council decided on recommendation of the foreman of public works.

Two pieces of property were sold. One was a half a waterfront lot on Constance Avenue for $200, and the other was a lot on Lamson Street for $100.

A tax sale exemption by-law was introduced and given first and second readings, and a streets and traffic regulation by-law amendment by-law was given first and second readings.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill
3—British Prime Minister

"All I can give," declared Winston Churchill, "will be blood, toll, tears and sweat."
He was speaking after being raised to the position of Prime Minister of Great Britain. His country was in the midst of the second World War, and the man whose place he took had not called forth the nation's full power.

Churchill after he became Great Britain's Prime Minister.

Going back over the years before September, 1939, we find Churchill making many a speech in the House of Commons, and uttering a warning against troubles to come. He said the government was not taking steps against the rising power of Hitler. He felt that the Nazis should be stopped at the time of the Rhineland invasion, at the time of the seizure of Austria, at the time of the Czechoslovakian crisis.

It may be that there were strong reasons to be careful when Hitler threatened Czechoslovakia. In that crisis Chamberlain feared that the people of London and other British cities would be helpless victims of mass German air attacks.

Chamberlain hoped he could "appease" Hitler, but at the same time took certain steps in the interest of defence. Air raid shelters were built and orders were given to make the air force somewhat larger.

Churchill was not willing to trust the Nazi promises. He said Hitler was a danger not only to Europe, but to the world in general.

When war broke out last September, the many warnings by Churchill were remembered. Once more he was given his old place as First Lord of the Admiralty.

Hitler's success in invading Norway brought about changes last May in the British government. Winston Churchill was made Prime Minister in Chamberlain's place. His choice was cheered by the people of Great Britain, Canada and other parts of the British Empire.

Churchill took hold with manful power. As the lightning struck in Holland, Belgium and France, he faced events with steady nerve.

What a blow when the Belgian King gave up his army with little or no warning to his Allies! Then came a greater blow when the French bowed beneath the attack. Blows or no blows, Churchill was there with a stout heart. Swiftly he made his country ready for the best defence it could prepare.

HOROSCOPE

Thursday, August 22

This is not an important day in planetary direction. Good and bad influences may contend in the daylight hours.

Women are under a configuration disturbing and depressing to them. Their ambitions may be curbed by unexpected events that change the current of life. Urgent duties will be placed upon many who must serve the nation. There must be a separation of essentials and nonessentials in planning for coming months.

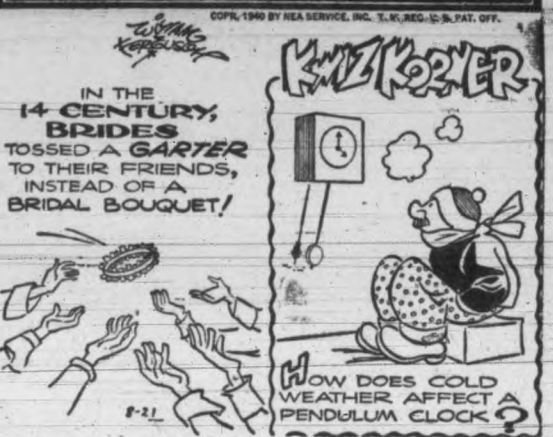

This is a day favorable to executives who have demonstrated their ability and foresight. Repercussions from the war will be keenly felt in financial markets, where fluctuations will be disturbing to the financial world; old systems of managing money will be changed or improved.

Kings and queens whose thrones have been taken from them will exercise a power to be recognized within a few years, the seers prophesy. Stable government and strong alliances will evolve from the waste and horror of war. Canada and the United States will benefit from the talents and experience of refugees who find a haven there. Refugee scientists and educators will contribute much to the new world.

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—Although we have lived in the same town for many years we have no friends because the moment a woman has a more expensive dress than my wife has, or gets a few more compliments, she is at the woman's throat with slighting remarks which can't go unnoticed. She will say: "Oh, Mame, is that another hat? My husband can't afford things like that." Or she will say: "Aren't your shoes too tight? They look like they hurt you terribly." Or: "Really, dear, don't you think that getting clothes too young for you make you look all the older?" Never a pleasant word for anyone. Of course, people won't stand for this and so we are dropped. Then my wife is furious because we are not invited about. I like people and hate to be at odds with everyone. Is there any way that you can suggest that I can teach my wife to be kinder? I have tried everything I know.

WRETCHED JIM.

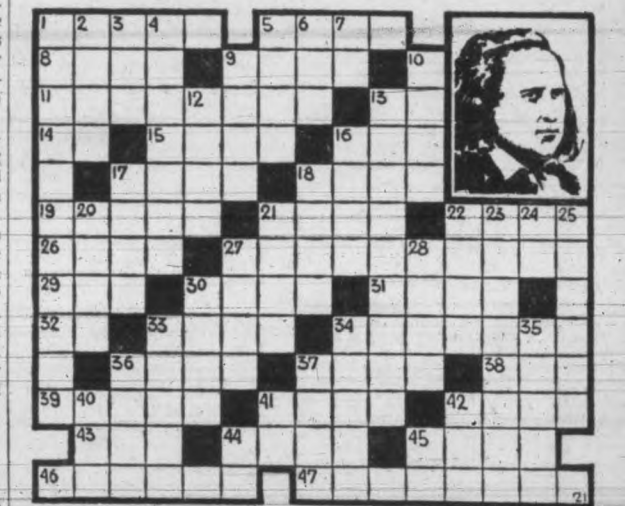

Answer: There is no known remedy for jealousy and envy, and when it fills a heart with gall it is bound to overflow on whoever is nearest.

A wife who makes enemies instead of friends for her husband is a terrible handicap to him, and especially is this true in a small community where everybody knows everybody else and kissing goes largely by favor. People go to such and such a store because the proprietor's wife is so popular. Or they call in Dr. So-and-so because Mrs. So-and-so is such a dear.

Certainly a man is to be pitied who has a wife with a serpent's tongue, but, alas, there is nothing that can be done about it.

DOROTHY DIX.

Crisis Threatens Argentine Regime

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Argentine authorities took precautions throughout the country today immediately after the arrest of Gen. Juan Bautista Molina, long regarded as one of the leaders of the extreme right wing of the Argentine army, in connection with a government-shaking army land buying scandal.

The crisis developed to such proportions last night that bedridden President Roberto M. Ortiz, who retired from active service July 3 because of illness, returned to the helm and called a cabinet meeting at his home early today in an attempt to control developments threatening his regime.

Immediately after the meeting War Minister Gen. Carlos Marquez went to the War Ministry and conferred with the inspector-general of the army, Gen. Guillermo Mohr, ordering precautionary measures in Argentina's six corps areas.

Gen. Marquez ordered that Gen. Molina be placed under arrest for 60 days. It was the War Minister's answer to a letter Gen. Molina had sent to the Senate yesterday charging that the War Minister had tried to clear himself of responsibility in the disputed land deal by "ignoble" means and by blaming other officers, among them Gen. Molina himself.

The crisis revolves about the sale to the army of a tract of land for 2,450,203 pesos (about $612,500), or five times the actual value, according to the report of a Senate committee investigating it.

Gen. Molina is a former chief of the army's engineering division. He was mentioned in recent reports of attempts to seize the government by force of arms.

Would Invite King Into British Cabinet

LONDON (CP)—The name of Prime Minister King was mentioned in the House of Commons yesterday by Sir P. A. Harris, Liberal, when he suggested that a recognized leader of Dominion opinion be included in the inner British cabinet.

"It would be a good thing if the Prime Minister (Mr. Churchill) could call to his council at the present time not only representatives of the Dominion but that some recognized leader of Dominion opinion could be brought into the inner cabinet," the British member said.

Mr. Mackenzie King, wise and experienced politician that he is, has the confidence of his own country. It is not for me to suggest who should be the leader to invite, but if a representative leader of Dominion opinion were invited it would be a symbol to the world that Britain is by no means singlehanded in fighting this war."

JOB INSURANCE STARTS IN FALL

More Children For Fairbridge

Fairbridge Farm School is to receive another group of children from England, according to a letter which appears in the July 17 issue of The London Times.

The letter, signed by Charles Hambro, chairman of the Fairbridge Farm Schools Inc., and P. J. Fagan, honorary treasurer, tells of two generous gifts received from an Englishman and British Columbia lumbermen and makes a further appeal for aid in carrying out the work of the organization.

An Englishman, the letter says, gave $500 within the last few days to pay the expenses of equipping and dispatching a party, without loss of time, to the safety of the Fairbridge Farm School in Canada.

"At the same time," it continues, "the lumbermen of British Columbia, under the leadership of John Humbird, begged to be allowed to build a hospital at the Fairbridge Farm School on Vancouver Island, which would serve during the time of stress to house an additional 56 children of Fairbridge category from this country. They further undertook to subscribe $30 a year for each of 30 children for the period of the war, and probably beyond it."

The two donations together covered the costs of preparing, outfitting, dispatching and housing 30 boys and girls of the farm school here. In addition it would ease the general maintenance bill to the extent of $900 a year.

"We are glad to publish such substantial help," Mr. Hambro and Mr. Fagan write. "At the same time we are anxious to draw attention to the extent of commitments of the Fairbridge Farm Schools. There are now four, and there is no endowment. We must look to friends both old and new in this country as well as in Canada and Australia to subscribe funds sufficient for the maintenance of their present establishments which covers 1,050 children. Moreover the committees and the staffs of the respective farm schools are urging us to make even greater use of their energies and their services and to send an additional 500 children. Such a proposal amounts to a challenge and we are eager to meet it. But it cannot be met unless the society has some prospect of being able to meet the bills for the outfitting, ocean passage and annual maintenance of that number of children."

"The bomb, in a mail bag being unloaded from a truck to a platform, was in a package addressed to a woman whose name authorities withheld.

Those injured were Harry E. Hess, 58, and Hyman Ritzberg, 32, both of whom suffered shoulder and leg lacerations.

"I had my hand on the string of this sack when I heard a report," Ritzberg said. "It sounded like two giant firecrackers going off at the same time."

"I looked down at my leg and it was bleeding and then I looked at my shoulder and there was blood on it."

Howard was Man Named By Roosevelt

HYDE PARK, N.Y. (AP)—President Roosevelt disclosed yesterday that several months ago he asked Roy Howard, editor of the New York World Telegram, to investigate fifth column activities in Latin America and that Howard declined.

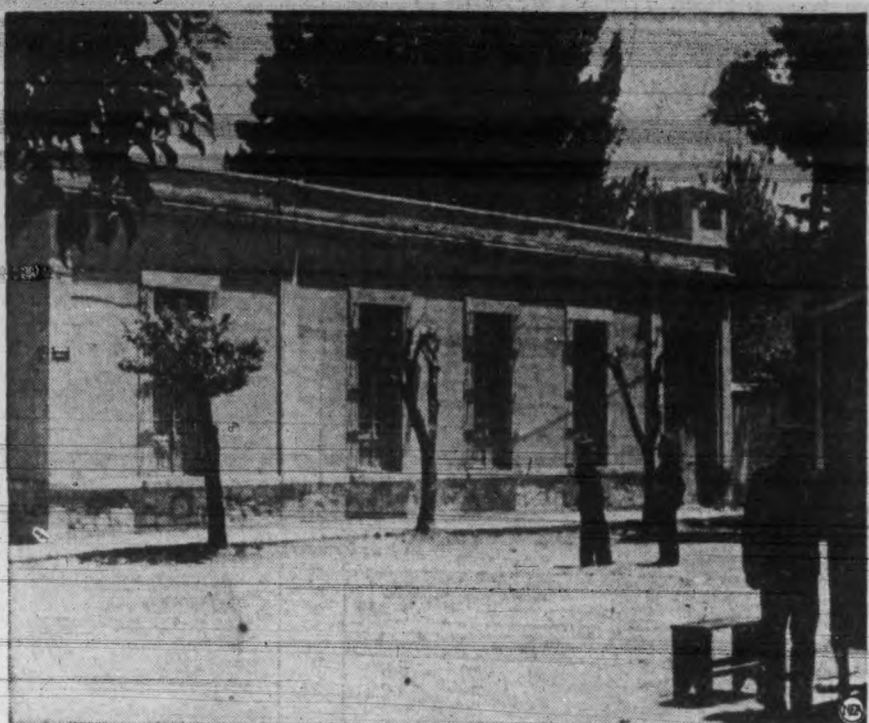

"During a press conference, the President identified Howard as the private individual he had in mind when he said in his third-term acceptance address that, with one exception, the persons he had asked to help in the defence program had agreed to do so.

In refusing Howard said it was 20 years since he had spent any time in South America and he had lost "contacts with the politics and the personalities of the continent."

Trotsky Gouged With Axe In Blue Plaster Retreat

It was in the office of this blue, plastered house in a sleepy Mexican street that Trotsky was assaulted last night.

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Leon Trotsky, 61, exiled "Napoleon of the Bolsheviks" who fled to a haven in Mexico, was near death today—victim of a pickaxe attack by a man who posed as his "great admirer."

Surgeons said Trotsky's condition was "very grave." The one-time Russian War Minister had a wound in the skull which exposed his brain and a fracture at the base of the skull. Two other blows from the axe injured his right shoulder and his right hip.

Surgeons operated on Trotsky last night, a few hours after he was set upon in the office of his home in nearby Coyoacan.

Gen. Jose Manuel Nunez, federal district police chief, said "there are hopes of saving his life." But Trotsky, who escaped unharmed as a machine-gun band invaded his residence May 24, was given few chances to live. Oxygen was administered.

Trotsky blamed the May 24 attack "directly on Josef Stalin and his secret police, the OGPU," and predicted it would be repeated. Twenty Mexicans were arrested a few days later.

Police said the "friend" who attacked Trotsky gave his name as Jacques Mortan Vandereischd, 36, native of Teheran, Iran. He studied in France and became a subject of Belgium. He said he was a newspaper writer but, so far as could be learned, he had no journalistic connections in Mexico.

He had known Trotsky a year, frequently visited the walled-in, well-fortified Coyoacan estate, and often dined privately with Trotsky while the two discussed political ideas.

Police said Vandereischd confessed, saying political opinions Trotsky recently expressed—so angered him that he decided to kill the Russian. He expressed regret and said he hoped he would be put to death, police said.

Trotsky and Vandereischd—regarded as a friend—were chatting in Trotsky's office alone when suddenly Trotsky called for help.

One of his bodyguards dashed in and found the visitor raining blows on the Russian's head with the pick, about 12 inches from tip to tip. The bodyguard disarmed the assailant.

Trotsky and the attacker were taken to the police hospital where patrolmen armed with tear-gas rifles stood before a heavy-iron gate to keep the crowd away.

Trotsky, who once sat at the right hand of Lenin, has lived quietly in exile in recent years, reading and writing and dreaming, no doubt, of his meteoric career in revolution.

It is said Trotsky always has a loaded pistol ready on his desk, and in his pocket if he went into the garden. Seldom has he gone into the public streets of sunny, sleepy Coyoacan.

Callers approach the door of the plaster house only under police escort. When it opens a crack, the big automatic of the inside guard is the first thing seen. All members of his staff go constantly armed.

Usually all callers on Trotsky were thoroughly searched by police, as shown above. How the assassin managed to smuggle in his pickaxe is not known.

mysterious George Mink and a sinister Roland Abbatte, according to reports, in the pay of Stalin's secret police, waiting and watching to kill Trotsky. Hence the elaborate electric alarm system, the guns and the guards and the floodlights at night.

Trotsky's routine has been something like this: He rises about 7.30 and takes a long walk within the walls of the house, which enclose a sunny patio. He breakfasts at 9, then works and reads or dictates until lunch at 1. His research is made possible by books sent from outside libraries, and by a stream of papers and magazines from many countries.

Trotsky is austere with his assistants, as with himself. Erect, alert, he is white-haired and dignified. He has not been in the best of health. His constant companion is his devoted wife, but her health has not been the best either. The death of their son, Leon, in Paris, some months ago, was a great blow to both.

U.S. People Desire To Keep Out of War

VANCOUVER (CP)—Wesley F. Rennie, general secretary of the Seattle Y.M.C.A., in a speech to the Rotary Club here yesterday said, "The United States could not be expected, for the time being at least, to enter the war as an active participant."

"Present desires of the American people were to keep out of war," he said. "The Allied powers defend democracy (or, to be blunt and realistic, defend the United States), and, lastly, secure a durable peace," he said, adding: "A democracy must act quickly if it is going to exist."

No Commitments In Defence Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—The setting up of a joint defence board by the Canadian and American governments involves nothing which necessitates a specially early reconvening of Parliament, says Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

Unless something turns up, he said at a press conference last night, Parliament would not meet before November 5, the date to which it adjourned two weeks ago.

That board, Mr. King emphasized, was fundamentally and essentially for the study of common defence problems. It involved no commitments at the present time. It would merely study the merits and demerits of various defence proposals of mutual concern to the two governments and probably make some recommendations. Action on those recommendations would then depend on the governments at Washington and Ottawa.

The Prime Minister said the government was considering the Canadian composition of the board, and its personnel would probably be announced in the "near future," simultaneously with Washington's personnel announcement.

President Roosevelt told a press conference at his Hyde Park home he hoped to announce the American members of the board Thursday.

The Prime Minister declined, despite numerous questions, to go further into possible courses of action which might result from creation of the joint defence board.

"Everything I have to say at present in that regard was said in Sunday's statement," he said, referring to the pronouncement he issued jointly with President Roosevelt at Ogdensburg after their meeting there.

"It was a complete statement, the whole truth and nothing but the truth," Mr. King said. "The board speaks for itself and all that is done under it will speak for it."

Mr. King stated he had talked over the matter with Conservative leader R. B. Hanson and Hon. Grover Stirling (Conservative, Yale). He said he had given them approximately the same particulars as he had given the cabinet itself, feeling the subject was one that should be imparted to the opposition leader.

"I think Mr. Hanson feels that the statement (at Ogdensburg) as it appears is welcomed by the people of Canada, irrespective of party altogether, as I believe it has been," Mr. King added.

The Prime Minister was questioned closely as to the part Canada might play in any leasing to the United States of Atlantic defence bases by the United Kingdom. Where crown colonies were involved, this would be entirely a matter for the United States and Britain, he said. However, Canada was interested in Newfoundland, as were the United States and Britain, and Canada would be interested in developments there. Canada's jurisdiction in this situation primarily affected matters within Canada.

Canning Projects for Red Cross Increase

In response to the lead taken by the B.C. Red Cross Division to conserve surplus food products of the province, 11 canning centres are now in full swing. The majority are under the co-operative direction of Red Cross branches and women's institutes. Canning kitchens have been established in Duncan, Summerland, Abbotsford, Pemberton, Salmon Arm, East Arrow Park and Oliver.

In Victoria, the project is being carried out by the Red Cross and Local Council of Women. In Vancouver, the Point Grey Women's Institute has organized it for the Red Cross, and a canning centre has been established in the Jersey Farms kitchen, 2256 West Broadway. Members of the Institute will be pleased to process fruit sent to this centre by nearby farm women, who can contribute the fruit, but who have not the time to process it themselves. The Kelowna Red Cross branch has had the offer of a local cannery to process 10,000 cans of tomatoes.

In a recent New York survey, butter was the only food product found in every home.
